Appellate

Experienced Appellate Counsel for State and Federal Appeals

Appellate litigation and trial litigation are very different practices. Additionally, the procedures for filing and prosecuting appeals can vary widely from one jurisdiction to the next. As a result, relevant appellate experience is critical when seeking to challenge (or uphold) a decision from a lower court or governing body.

The appellate attorneys at Paskert Divers Thompson are experienced in handling all types of civil and administrative appeals. We have been involved in appeals to the United States Supreme Court, the Florida Supreme Court, and several other state and federal appellate courts.

About Our Appellate Practice

We handle civil and administrative appeals for both private clients and governmental entities. Our experience includes all aspects of appeals from briefing to oral argument in a variety of matters ranging from complex commercial disputes to administrative disputes involving novel issues. We provide appellate representation in all of our substantive practice areas, and have experience litigating appeals before:

- U.S. Supreme Court
- U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit (serving Alabama, Florida and Georgia)
- Florida Supreme Court
- Florida District Courts of Appeal
- Administrative appeals from the Division of Administrative Hearings (DOAH)
- Other state and federal appellate courts

Through their work with our firm's trial litigators, our appellate attorneys gain deep knowledge of the substantive legal and factual issues involved in our clients' cases. Combined with their broad appellate experience, this collaboration positions them to provide highly effective representation on appeal. We represent both new and existing clients at the appellate level, and routinely receive referrals from law firms in Florida and other states that do not have appellate practices.
